Preface

For the family historian, the exciting feeling of discovering a new ancestor is paramount. It is thrilling to examine the document on which the new ancestor's name appears and, not unlike a detective, to take note all of the clues provided about the ancestor's background. Perhaps the ancestor is found in the census, or on his or her child's death record – both are sources that commonly provide the state or country of birth. For example, the census may reveal that your ancestor was born in Indiana, and by calculating his or her age against the census year, it is possible to determine approximately when, but how can you find out where in Indiana?

This common, yet difficult, challenge was the reason the Pre-1882 Indiana Births from Secondary Sources project was initiated. Official birth records do not exist for Indiana prior to 1882. Because determining place of birth of children is so important in pinpointing a family's county of origin and directing the course of further research, Heritage Pathways, Inc., has collected nearly 10,000 birth events and published them in this first volume of this project.

Sources for the births included in this volume include county history biographies, family bibles, private family records, material submitted to periodicals by genealogists (such as pedigree and family group charts), unpublished manuscripts, state biographical sources, newspaper obituaries, Civil War pension files, and other sources. The compiler owes a particular debt of gratitude to Arlene Goodwin and Troas M. Wise for their additions to this volume. The two women contributed numerous birth events, many of which came from a manuscript on births from DeKalb County sources previously compiled by Mrs. Wise.

With the notable exception of family bibles, the majority of the sources cited in this volume are secondary, as the book's title suggests. Therefore, Heritage Pathways cannot guarantee the accuracy of the data. We suggest that researchers consult the source cited for possible additional information, and to make a judgement about the accuracy of the data based on the type of source from which it came. In most cases, the researcher would be well advised to use the data as a clue only, until it can be verified by additional sources.

The main value and purpose of this volume should be to allow the researcher to place his or her family into a previously unknown specific location in Indiana, so that research in primary documents for that location can be done.

Pre-1882 Indiana Births from Secondary Sources is an ongoing project, and future volumes are planned. In addition, a companion volume, Pre-1882 Indiana Deaths from Secondary Sources, is planned. Heritage Pathways, Inc., welcomes submissions of pre-1882 Indiana births and deaths. All events must have a first and last name (maiden name for women for births; married name for women for deaths), at least a year and preferably the complete date of the event, the type of event (birth or death), the county, and the source. Father's name and mother's maiden name also are included in the database when known, but are not required.

How to Use this Source

Each birth event in this volume includes – at minimum – a person's surname, his or her county of birth, and a source number for the information cited. However, most events include much more. The most complete citations include the following information, in the order cited here. The categories of information following the name are separated by commas:

SURNAME, First Name – birth date, county of birth, father's name, mother's maiden name, source name: page number

Some further explanation may be necessary for a few entries:

- If the location is preceded by an asterisk (*), it generally is the name of a town for which a county could not be located, for a town that lies on the line that separates two counties, or for a town name that exists in more than one county in Indiana.

- If the source number is followed by two numbers separated by a virgule (/), the number to the left of the virgule is a volume number, and the number to the right is the page number.

- Occasionally, an event may have two source numbers. A combination of sources may have been used to establish date and county of birth, such as a cemetery transcription for date, and another source for county.

- In general, census records were not used, except in rare cases where the enumerator did not follow instructions and listed the county of birth for residents, or in combination with other sources. Events which do cite a census as a source have the code 22 (for census), followed by the last two digits of a 19th century year (40, 50, etc.), and all digits for a 20th century year (1910, 1920).

- As noted above, the child's mother's maiden name is listed when it was included in the source. In some instances, of course, this actually may be a remarried woman's prior married name. Compound names especially should be suspect for this type of occurrence.

- One entry, for Mary Teresa Heeb, cites "Marr. ap." as the source of information. Genealogists researching this family should consult her marriage application, which is filed in Fayette County, Indiana.

A List of Sources, codes used in this book with corresponding source names, begins on Page 215. Types of sources are described in the Preface to this volume, but the majority of the events are from county histories and genealogy periodicals. Most of the book sources can be found in genealogical research collections in the state of Indiana, and occasionally elsewhere. All are available at the Allen County Public Library in Fort Wayne. Copies of the periodicals cited usually are available from the Society which published the periodical. In addition, all periodicals are available at the Allen County Public Library.

In the vast majority of cases, photocopies corresponding to citations in this volume are available for a research fee by contacting:

Heritage Pathways, Inc.
P.O. Box 13485
Fort Wayne, IN 46869-3485
(Toll-free) 1-877-201-9110

In only a few rare cases, the sources are private materials (letters, bibles, unpublished manuscripts, etc.) that were in the possession of the compiler of this volume only briefly, and therefore cannot be photocopied. It was felt that the benefit of inclusion of these events outweighed the inconvenience of photocopies of the source not being available.
